Two Convicts Make Break At Kilby

Montgomery — Two Negro convicts, Ashton Marsh, 26, and Olin Teel, 36, made their escape from prison authorities while working in the fields near Kilby prison, Warren Township, Dennis has announced.

Both men were long-termers, and Dennis said that Marsh had been sentenced in Escambia County last year to serve 20 years for attempted murder, and has a two-year sentence for grand larceny pending in Montgomery county, while Teel, several times paroled and returned to complete his term, was sentenced in Bullock county to serve 25 years for robbery.

Dennis said that the fugitives were trailed for several miles before eluding their pursuers in a residential section of Montgomery.

Men Favor Daring Dresses On Other Girls—Not Theirs

Confidential tip to the girls—men like daring dresses only on other girls' dresses, not theirs.

That was the essence of opinion expressed by a group of collegians, including Eugene Rossides of Columbia football fame, who served on Cosmopolitan magazine's male-
 "Believe it or not they voted consistently for gowns with some covering over shoulder or upper arm or with narrow shoulder straps," Kay Winter, fashion editor of the magazine declared. "The completely bare shoulder decollete was something delightful to them—only on the other fellow's girl."

Typical of college men throughout the country, many of them having returned from overseas service, they represented a cross-section of male opinion as to how they like their women to dress. They represented Yale, Princeton, Cornell, Amherst, Columbia, Dartmouth, the University of Nebraska.

"Generally the boys approved of dresses that had a sophisticated but not too exposed look," Mr. Winter said. "In fact it's a look the boys pronounced 'dramatic.'"

"Gowns were particularly impressed with the slit neckline of one of the winning dresses which embodied all the fashion points that had been emphasized. 'It was a royal blue crepe gown that bared the shoulders but covered the arms completely,' Mr. Winter said. 'The skirt, with sophisticated hi-line drapes, tapered to a narrow hemline, but the slit allowed plenty of freedom for dancing.'"

"Sensational and relaxing" was the way Paul Stussel of the University of Missouri described the winning dress, which the group shown.

Bob Sloan, Yale hockey player, and Bob Sloan, who pitched for the Princeton baseball team were included in the judging of the yearbook and member of the student council at Amherst, became a bit confused in his articulation.

"There are a great improvement on countless evening gowns," he said.

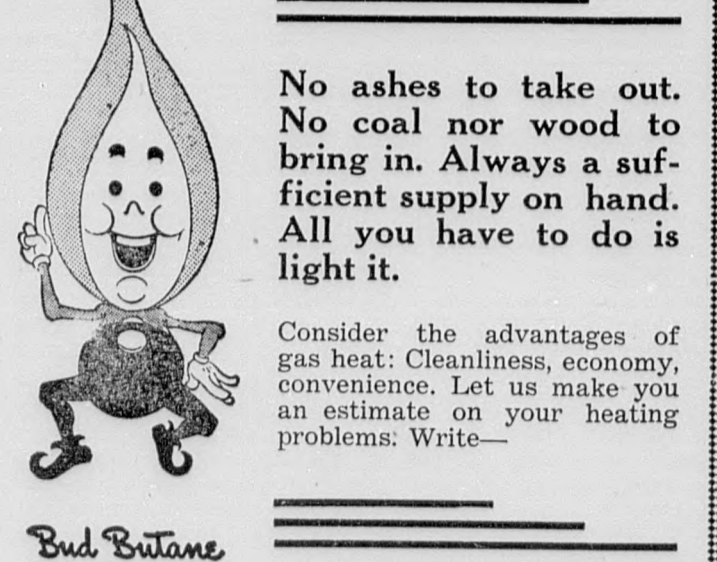

Other members of the jury who decided during gowns were for other girls—not theirs—were Dick Littauer, a senior at Grunko, University of Nebraska and Gene Bokor of Dartmouth.

Supreme Court Rules Out Folsom Probers

Montgomery — The State Supreme court has ruled that Gov. James E. Folsom's plan to appoint his own investigating committees does not come under his authority.

The ruling was handed down as a result of a request by Folsom to decide whether the constitution gives him the power to appoint investigating committees to survey existing conditions in state election laws, prison administration, and operations of the ABC system.

The tribunal handed down a unanimous advisory opinion which said that Folsom's action lacked the authority to set up the investigating committees but had such authority, he would not finance the investigations out of his emergency or contingent funds as an chief executive had planned to do.

The question arose as a result of the passage of certain resolutions by the 1947 Legislature for the purpose of establishing investigating bodies of state election methods, the penal system, and the ABC legal structure. The resolutions were vetoed by Folsom who said he would appoint the committees himself.

In requesting the ruling, the governor cited three sections of the constitution, which define the governor's office and require him to see that the laws are enforced, and further charge the chief executive with the duty of recommending legislation which he might consider needed.

Justice Joel B. Brown, in writing the court's decision, said the tribunal was not of the opinion that the sections cited by the governor gave him the power to appoint a committee charged with investigating matters of public interest.

Justice Brown said that until next June, because a thorough study of all possible candidates will be made before a president is finally chosen, and that takes a lot of time."

Tecumseh, probably the most famous Indian in American history and also the most hated man in the nation at the beginning of the War of 1812, may have been born in Alabama.

The Shawnee chief's parents were Cherokee of this state who moved into the Middle West at sometime in the eighteenth century, and the possibility remains that they may have been born in Alabama.

Montgomery — Although the sub-committee of the Auburn board of trustees, which has been appointed to recommend a president for the institution met recently with Gov. Folsom committee members said that no definite recommendation had been made to the state's chief executive.

Explaining that the qualifications of the new president were the main topic of discussion, one committee member said that the next assembly of the sub-committee would be held at Auburn in about two weeks.

Gov. Folsom said "The board probably won't select a president until next June."

State Gives Up Effort To Return Prison Escapees

Montgomery — No plans have been made for the return of Bonnie Mack Hines, 39, Negro, who escaped from an Alabama prison in May of last year and fled into the state of Massachusetts, State Prison Director Frank Boswell disclosed.

Boswell, upon learning that the fugitive has been released earlier in the week, said that the Massachusetts authorities had all the data before them in the state's extradition request and that if the New England authorities did not see fit to honor the request, then "I don't see any good reason for pressing the case," he said.

Boston's Assistant Attorney General Michael A. Fredo explained that Hines was released because Alabama officials had failed to send a representative to Massachusetts to affect Hines' return to Alabama.

Convicted of robbing a Mobile box of $5 in 1942, Hines was sentenced to 15 years in prison. He made his escape from custody approximately four years after being sentenced.

GERMAN PRISONER WRITES TO FARMER NEAR OPP

The following letter was received by J. T. Dyess, a farmer of this section, from a German prisoner of war he worked during World War II.

Wiesbaden, Dezbrk Kassel
 Steinstrasse 28, Germany
 8th of September, 1947.

Dear Mister Dyess:

I don't know if you remember me I was prisoner of war in the States, and have helped you during the peanut harvesting in autumn 1945. I add my pleasure then maybe you are able to remember me.

It was a good time in America, especially in Ala. All the farmers—especially you—where we have worked were good people and I tell my wife and my Fugenberg (she is my little daughter nine years old) very much of the peanuts and the philanthropy of the farmers in Ala. I know still, your little boy brought to me and to my comrades always came and watermelons.

In February 1946 we went back to Europe but not home as we thought. We were unloaded in England and must work still. In October 1946 I went home because I was ill. The life in Germany is very hard now. All the towns and villages are destroyed and the foodstuffs are very, very small. For example, we get for four weeks three and one-half ounces of butter, 16 pounds bread, nine quarts meat, no fat, and sugar. We get nothing in the next three months. You can imagine it's too little for life. We are hungry always.

I should be very glad if you could send me some gift-packets (20 pounds are allowed) to mitigate our need. Many, many thanks for your kindness in advance. The first time we would need flour, sugar, fat, bacon and if it's possible to send some peanuts for my child, that she can see and eat what her father does. And when I hear of you I will send you a picture of my whole family.

I hope you are in best health and send you and your family my best wishes.

Sincerely Yours,
 Gerhard Boehm

Let's Be Sensible

A speaker addressing an audience, asked those present to state what they thought were the great needs of the country.

A secretary recorded these answers: Surrender of private property, clean politics, help for the underdog, guaranteed jobs for everybody, respect for law, less graft, better manners, less worry, freedom from responsibility, and so on.

If that group was a cross-section of the country's thinking for what are we headed? Nobody said the great need of the country is common sense, every day religion, return, in some respects, to the days of our fathers, whose ideal was abundant, and whose ideal was not money, power, or play; who rolled up their sleeves and went to their tasks with sunny hearts, happy that they had tasks to do.

Alabama's constitution, which was written as a result of a constitutional convention in 1801, is the third longest constitution in the nation with 42,000 words. Self-Starter Amendment

A group of legislators have announced their intention of waging a campaign in the near future to rally voters behind the self-starter amendment. They explain now that it is a movement for "back home" government, that it is needed legislation that should be passed regardless of who is governor, and that several other states have already passed similar laws.

The legislators have a good argument but they are coming out far too late with it. When the amendment passed, it was labeled as a necessary measure to allow the legislature to keep watch over the administration and more expressly to prevent Forsom from playing havoc with the state's business in the absence of legislators.

Evidently this publicity was OK'ed by advocates of the bill since it made headlines in papers strictly anti-Forsom. If they didn't originate the idea they certainly made no effort to stop it. However, the governor has received unexpected response from his tour and now they see what seemed an easy victory turning to bitter defeat.

In spite of all that has been said against the amendment, his campaign against the amendment has been steadily making progress. If the advocates of the bill had set up merely as a piece of progressive legislation and left off the idea that it was to be used as a check against the governor they might have gotten it through. Instead they saw fit to bring personalities into it making it a purely personal matter so that now the voter isn't voting on the bill at all. He is voting for or against Forsom; and Gov. Forsom still has the backing of a surprisingly large percentage of the voters.

Grover Hall, in one of his editorials, called it a "third primary" and even went so far as to surmise that the governor would be shoved by the people for his popularity was gone. The terms "third primary" and "watchdogs of the senate" have been noticeably missing from recent publicity on the issue but it's too late now. The bill, good or bad, has been accepted as a slap at the governor and will be voted on as such and on January 6 it is very likely to become a defeated amendment that didn't even get to first base.

Brantley Banner

Though we have been unable to acquire a copy of last week's "Brantley Banner," we have been reliably informed that editor Bickford had several articles most uncompromisingly toward Elba in general and the police department in particular. Seems that during the Brantley game while a fight was going on between players and fans rushed to the field a Brantley man was arrested and lodged in the city hotel with proper accommodations. He refused to sign a bond but was released about three hours later upon payment of his fine by a relative.

The following day he returned to Elba and complained to police officials, in a very accusing manner, that he had lost approximately $15 from a pocketbook while a guest of the city. The police had not taken his wallet, had not, in fact, removed any personal articles from him and knew nothing of the money he was supposed to have lost.

Members of the police department who make the arrest told us that they tried to quiet the man on the field, but he continued to curse and generally misbehave so they carried him to the Brantley sideline but he still wouldn't quiet down and left them no alternative other than to offer him city hospitality. Editor Bickford interprets this as gestapo tactics and gives forth with the opinion that Elba should be investigated to see why such persons are allowed on the payroll.

Editor Bickford has just started publication of the Banner and probably saw in the incident a chance to create a stir with his new sheet and get in solid with Brantley people. We don't know many people in Brantley but suspect they are like millions of other people throughout the south and thoroughly dislike such cheap practices.

We think that if Editor Bickford is determined that there be an investigation he should start by investigating himself and see why people anywhere put up with such prattling.

Three Elba people were also arrested that night but paid their fines without all the fuss. People here realize that when they consume large quantities of anything equal to Krenshaw County Korn or otherwise make a nuisance of themselves they are subject to the penalties of the law. People from out of town have no right to expect any other treatment either.

ZION CHAPEL HOST TO PARENTS LAST WEEK

Zion Chapel put on her best "bib and tucker" last Friday and held open house for parents and friends of the school.

A goodly number of parents, both fathers and mothers, spent the day visiting the different grades and observing the work of both pupils and teachers, for the work went forward as usual on the daily schedule. Written work of the pupils was attractively displayed in each room. Other decorations were beautiful flowers and pictures artistically placed.

As the morning advanced several ladies entered the lunch room and assisted the lunch room ladies in preparing the lunch and serving the large number of pupils and visitors.

The spirit shown here is the very essence of cooperation between the patrons and the school; and it is the goal for which all schools and school organizations strive for.

The guests were treated to a free lunch of delicious chicken with all the trimmings. The pupils and teachers were served the same menu.

At noon other patrons and friends began arriving until the number reached past the half hundred mark.

After noon recess the school and its visitors assembled in the large auditorium. After a short but appreciative welcome and announcements by the principal, Prof. Harold Collins, the play "Judgment Day" was presented by students of the high school. On last Tuesday this group accompanied by Mrs. Loyd Crook, teacher of the seventh grade, presented this script in Troy over radio station WYBP from 9:15 to 9:30. The play was recorded and later in the week was broadcast over the Andalusia and Dothan stations.

When you are sewing on snaps, sew all on one side first. Then rub these with chalk and press against the other side of the garment. This will leave a mark on the other side and assure you of getting the snaps on straight.

Coffee Countains Cooperating With Blood Test Program

Dr. Weidner announced that a total of 1500 blood tests were taken Monday, November 24th, the first day of the blood testing program in Coffee County. Although this total fell below the daily average of 200 bloods expected, Dr. Weidner expressed satisfaction with the wholehearted response of the people, and hoped that this daily average would be reached with the opening of the Court House in Enterprise as a blood testing station on Wednesday, November 26th. The Court House will operate as a station Wednesday, November 26th, Friday, November 28th and Saturday, November 29th of this week, beginning Monday, December 1st through Friday, December 5th of the following week. The Court House in Elba will operate as a station Monday, December 1st through Wednesday, December 3rd.

Dr. Weidner emphasized the fact that these tests were compulsory as provided by an Act of the Legislature in July 1945. The law requires all residents of the county between the ages of 14 and 50 to submit to the tests. The only persons who are exempt are members of the Armed Forces and persons who are ill and under the care of a physician. In the latter, the responsibility of obtaining the test rests with the doctor. All persons submitting to the tests are given a white identification card which shows that they have complied with the law. The tests are kept strictly confidential. Persons whose tests show a positive result will be notified by mail to report for further examination. Further treatment will not be required for those who have received adequate treatment.

Treatment is now available to all those who cannot afford treatment from their private physician may receive treatment at the Rapid Treatment Center in Birmingham. The treatment varies with the case, but the modern miracle drug, penicillin, given for a period of seven days has been found to be more effective than the former treatment with arsenic and bismuth once a week for a year to 18 months.

In order to prevent a bottle neck in the blood testing station next week, Dr. Weidner

Elba Beta Club Has Banquet

The annual banquet for the Elba Beta Club was given at the vocational building Thursday evening.

Mr. E. A. McBryde, of Talladega was the guest speaker on this delightful occasion. He was introduced by Marshall Ringadorf, Beta president, who explained that Mr. McBryde was an outstanding man in the field of education. He is a past president of AEA and for a number of years was a high school principal and served several terms as superintendent of Talladega County schools.

He proved to be a most interesting speaker. He held the attention of his audience every minute and talked of matters dealing with the everyday activities of high school students and teachers. The three requirements—scholarship, conduct, and leadership—for Beta membership were stressed by the speaker. His style of humor was particularly entertaining.

In addition to Mr. McBryde, the club's guests were members of the high school faculty.

Belle Ann Bryan in a few well chosen words, welcomed the guests and Mrs. Roberta Childs gave the response. Two vocal numbers by Junita Fuller accompanied at the piano by Elizabeth Miles, and a dance by Helen Braswell added much to the pleasure of the evening.
